At Bristol last week a special grand jury indicted George E. Davis, Judge William F. Rhea's private secretary, for shooting with intent to kill Gen. James A. Walker on the night of March 11. The home of Hon. E. E. Meredith at Manassas was broken into recently and his silver plate valued at about $150 was stolen. There is no clue to the burglar. The Fredericksburg Free Lance pays this deserved tribute to Colonel O'Ferrall: Ex Governor O'Ferrall is said to be taking no part in politics now. He will probably devote the rest of his life to the practice of law. The Colonel is a hard worker, and though his health is not good he is at office early and late. He is building up a good practice. He has a beautiful home in Chesterfield, just beyond Manchester and delights in the society of his interesting family. The Colonel will vote the democratic ticket as usual at the May election. And it gives the Free Lance pleasure to say that Virginia never had a more capable or faithful executive.

Some eight or ten years ago the "Survivors of the Clarke Cavalry" had under consideration the erection of a monument to the memory of the Confederate dead of this county. After securing subscriptions to the monument fund and getting an act passed by the Legislature authorizing the board of supervisors of this county to grant enough ground in the court house yard for the erection of said monument, the subject was allowed to rest on account of the hard times that came with the panic of 1893. It is understood that the matter will now be actively pushed until sufficient funds are raised to complete the monument. $1000 is needed for the purpose, of which $625 is already in hand, leaving $375 to be obtained. The Daughters of the Confederacy will be appealed to to use their influence in behalf of collecting funds for this object.

Last Saturday morning, as Mr. Thomas Shumate and wife, of White Post, were about to start to Winchester, their horses were frightened by the breaking of the yoke and dropping of the tongue of their carriage to the ground. Mr. Shumate, realizing the situation, promptly seized the excited animals to reduce them to a quiet obedience, but while so engaged received several bruises about the body and face. Mrs. Shumate was in the carriage at the time of the accident, rendering such aid as she could in managing the horses. They were finally quieted, and after making repairs executed their interrupted trip to Winchester.

Mr. Harry Hardesty, one of our liverymen, did a brave act one day recently, while driving his hack from the depot. One of his horses started to run after becoming frightened, when, in an effort to check it the rein snapped in two. The hack contained a young lady, and as a bold step was necessary to get control of his team, Mr. Hardesty leaped from his seat on the hack to the back of the excited animal, by which act he checked his runaway team. To make such a jump required a brave heart, especially when falling short of his aim might have resulted in a serious injury.

Bishop Galloway made a strong appeal before the Baltimore Conference, M. E. Church South, in Washington for the raising of $1,500,000 by the Southern church as its part of the "twentieth century fund, the Methodist throughout the world are endeavoring to raise for the purpose of higher education for their youth. In the course of his address Bishop Galloway made the startling statement that there had been a falling off in membership of this denomination during the last year of 8,000. He insisted that the future of the church depended upon what was taught the children in the schools and that there should be better schools.

The entertainment is pronounced unique and highly interesting.

The Water Supply Question.

With the revival of spring there is a revival of the water supply question. The subject came up last week through a visit made to our town by a gentleman from Scanton, Pa., who said he had a letter from the firm owning the partly constructed plant and franchise, in which they said they would dispose of the franchise, &c., for $6000. The visitor, Mr. Gearhart, said he was willing to take hold of the enterprise and complete it, if the town would agree to carry out the contract it had made with the company about eight years ago in reference to fire plugs. Mr. Gearhart did not meet the town council, but interviewed several members thereof, who informed him that in their judgment it would be best for the town to own the plant, as it belonged to that class of improvements in which all would be more or less affected. To meet the position of these members of the council we understand Mr. Gearhart said he would put the plant in working order, and give the town an option to purchase it inside of two years, but he expected to realize something on the risk he would assume besides the money invested in the enterprise.

We have always held to the opinion that it would be best for the town to own this water plant. It is one of those works spoken of by Prof. Ely as a natural monopoly that ought to be retained by those who at last would be taxed to maintain it. If a good investment, its benefits would ensure to the advantage of the customers of the plant, but if by charging reasonable rates it did not at first prove profitable, the rates would be increased so that at last the customers would have to foot the bill of interest, &c.

Now, we are informed our corporate authorities are willing to undertake to purchase the franchise, if it can do so at a fair price, and complete the works, providing the whole can be done within the limit of $20,000. The way to find this out is to get a competent engineer to make the estimates, then advertise for bids and see if they are within the limits of our means. After paying $6000 for the franchise and the piping already laid, the residue of the necessary work, which may include overhauling some heretofore done, should not exceed $14,000.

The abundance of money in the country, as evidenced by the readiness with which bonds at a low rate of interest are bought at par by investors, warrants the belief that if our town issues securities of the twenty year period, they can be negotiated at par at a 4 per cent. rate. This would make the annual interest amount to only $800—a sum not much greater than the town would be asked to pay as rent for fire plugs, if some one else completes and owns the plant.

Highway Robbery.

A bold robbery was committed on the N. & W. Railway near the tool-house a short distance below Berryville last Monday night, about nine o'clock. Mr. Mauck, a section boss on said road, after purchasing some articles at a store, was proceeding down the railroad track to his boarding house, Mr. Mallory's on the "boom," when a man stepped up to him and asked for a chew of tobacco. While in the act of breaking off a piece from his plug another man suddenly pushed a pistol into Mauck's face and bade him hold up his hands, with which command he complied. After the strangers had searched his pockets, where they secured $23 in money, Mauck was dealt a powerful blow on the head, which knocked him senseless to the ground, and at same time he received a bad cut on the hand. Returning to consciousness Mr. Mauck went and procured Mr. Mallory and they called upon Sergeant Ricamore, to whom an account of the affair was given.

Sergeant Ricamore proceeded to the railroad where he found 4 tramps whom he placed under arrest. They were searched, and as no money or weapons were found upon them, and Mr. Mauck was not able to identify them as the highwaymen who robbed him, they were turned loose with orders to leave the town. Mr. Mauck describes his assailants as dark complexioned, and thinks, though is not positive, that they were colored men. One was small while the other was well built, and wore a crushed hat. Their language resembled the dialect of negroes.

A Bridge over the Opequon.

The residents in the neighborhood of Spout Springs have erected a simple bridge over the Opequon principally for their own use and incidentally for the benefit of wheelmen, for whom the entire neighborhood have a friendly feeling. The construction of the bridge entailed some expense upon the kind hearted people, and several local wheelmen feel so conscientious over the matter that they think local wheelmen should assist in defraying the expense of building the bridge, as a large number of Winchesterians will use it. Now, if any of the local wheelmen desire to show their appreciation of this kind act by contributing to the expense incurred by these good people, and all prompted by their feelings to make such contributions, can leave the same with Mr. Henry Willis at A. L. Shearer's.—Winchester Star.

EAST OR WEST.—The curious question is raised as to whether our new possessions in the far Pacific are to be termed the eastern or western portion of our country. They are clearly eastern in the public mind, as viewed from this section of the United States, and they have always been regarded as the eastern portion of the world, but the people of the Pacific coast are speaking of them as western, and they certainly sail west to reach them. Is there a point in the far Pacific where the limit of the west is to be defined as ending, and the east is supposed to begin? This expanding of United States territory all over the round globe is sufficiently novel, and it seems to create some perplexity as to the points of the compass.—Boston Herald.

[COMMUNICATED.]

My brother was over to see me; was glad to see him, but you know he never leaves so long as there is a mouthful to eat or a word to say.

My dog followed me to town the other day but didn't meet with the same warm reception that I generally do from candidates; in fact he was very lonesome. He had on his muzzle and harness that the children use on him in playing. The children don't like to be interrupted in their play by other dogs making his acquaintance, and have placed a fine cambric needle in the nose pit of his muzzle. He had run the gauntlet through the common dogs on the road, but when we got to town Doctor McCormick's handsome dog came running out into the street and approached him with the view of making his acquaintance, but as the Doctor's dog came into collision with the spear my dog carried, the meeting was not a very friendly one.

Doctors are a great fraud—they feel your pulse, look at your tongue, assume an anxious look, give you a prescription written in hieroglyphics as you find upon the pyramids of Egypt, go home and charge you for a visit.

Same way with the lawyers; if you talk with one five minutes he will charge you a fee. And the same way with the preachers; if you want to be saved or are seeking salvation they are willing and ready to help you. I met and talked with Farmer Warde about his new home; sold him some kindling pine, but he seemed nervous and sensitive when I suggested he let me furnish him some mountain shrubs or fruit trees. Poor man, he is so impoverished he has a hard time getting along. I believe in helping such men and when I butcher will take him a little sausage and a pumpkin.

I see your Madison county correspondent alludes to this locality and your humble servant in his usual warm and kindly style. I cheerfully inform him that members of my class at the Naval Academy are now all dead heroes, and had I remained in the service would have been among the number. His views on expansion are immense.

No pent-up America contracts our powers. But the whole boundless world is ours.

He omits Patrick Henry's famous utterance, "Liberty or Death," and his party is dealing out a great deal of death and mighty little liberty. I was mighty tired of peace and poverty and hoped our trouble with Spain would lead to war and prosperity, but the republican party has transferred the prosperity seven thousand miles away. Such "christianization and benevolent assimilation" will make times still harder.

Mr. Editor, we will never have better times in this country until we drive such traitors to their party as Cleveland and McKinley out of the White House and get an honest free silver man for President.

I found the President of the Ugly Men's Club of your town on the witness stand about a little whiskey. I don't know how it is, I can go back in the mountain at a turkey shooting and drink moonshine whiskey all day, but can't take three drinks in your town before the pavement will fly up and hit me in the face.

You should improve and complete the town's supply of water. Your town is getting sleepy. The kickers against the completion of the water works are a class who allow their wiser to earn a dollar at the washing tub and then spend it in the saloons. Your town is going back. Any stranger on entering it can see any number of persons sitting on boxes whittling wood with borrowed knives. Your ministers have preached two farwell sermons a year for the past ten years, but still hold on hoping for some life or enterprise. Any taxpayer who believes in improving the town should be willing to pay his pro rata share, and should consent to have the same luxuries that are enjoyed by the people of other towns.

I was reading an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the Worcester Enterprise recently, which leads me to write this.
